

I have been impressed by the effectiveness of the Indiana State Telephone Privacy law. By placing our phone number on the list, we have effectively eliminated all nuisance phonecalls - without having an unlisted phone number. As a new resident of Indiana, I was amazed how quickly telemarketers started calling our residence and the frequency of the calls was beginning to be more than a minor problem. We were actively seeking ways to eliminate or reduce the number of telemarketing calls. I added my name to the Indiana no call lists and had to wait for the next publishing date of the list. Since that time we virtually receive no telemarketing calls. I would oppose any rulings that would reduce the power of the Indiana laws in this area.

Thanks,
